

California Post Chaplain Named VFW National Chaplain of the Year

Retired Southern Baptist Navy Chaplain Manuel “Don” Biadog Jr., was named the Chaplain of the Year by the Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) during a July 20 ceremony at Post 7907 in Poway, Calif., where he is a member and serves as post chaplain. Biadog also is a chaplain ambassador for the North American Mission Board (NAMB), and missions/executive pastor at Old Town Community Church in San Diego.

Timothy Borland, commander in chief of the nearly 6,000-VFW posts, authorized the award which states: “In spirited recognition and sincere appreciation of his unwavering commitment to the ministry and duties of the VFW chaplain as evidenced by his service to the veterans, service members, and their families.”

In his remarks during the awards ceremony, VFW Post Commander John Carson spoke warmly of Biadog. “VFW Post 7907 has been truly blessed by the presence and the ministry of Chaplain Biadog since the summer of 2016.” “He makes himself available any time of the day, trying to help and meet the needs of the veterans and their families. In times of a veteran’s experiencing ‘stormy weather,’ he makes himself available by visiting the sick, delivering food and consoling and comforting the bereaved shipmate.”
